Bark at the Moon Pug Ball

On the third Sunday of every month, numerous pugs and their people get together for a fun play time put together by Amy and Andrew Gross of Coleman. For October, Amy decided that the Midmichigan Pug Play Group would become a pug ball and Halloween party on October 19 that would raise money for SOS Animal Rescue. Fifteen costumed pugs came with their families. Sara Willick from Howl-A-Day Resort demonstrated how to use a "Furminator" brush and also offered nail trims. A mini hay ride was available for anyone wanting to enjoy the beautiful fall weather. Mickey and Vivian were crowned Prince and Princess of the ball for the best dressed/costumed contest. The play group collected $70 in donations which was presented to an SOS volunteer that evening. A big "THANKS" goes to Amy and Andrew for putting so much time and effort into this event and for caring so much about the foster animals. Any pug people interested in joining the play group can visit the website Midmichiganpugplay.homestead.com.

Pet Lessons

A lot of adults could learn from ten-year-old J.R. Nosal (pictured above) and nine-year-old Matthew Adams. J.R.'s love for animals prompted him to do something to help. With SOS Animal Rescue in mind, J.R. and his friend Matthew set up a lemonade stand in August to raise money for their furry friends. The lemonade stand also featured prized possessions the boys had collected to assist in their fund-raising: Webkinz, Webkinz trading cards, homemade zucchini bread, and many other miscellaneous items.

"I thought I would raise about $50," said J.R. when asked what his goal was. Instead, the boys raised about $125. They were surprised at how many people came out, with many donations being cash. Because of the success, they hope to make this a yearly event and are already saving items for next year's fund-raiser.

Why SOS Animal Rescue? "I really love animals. I want to be a veterinarian," he says. (Later J.R. showed me his Halloween costume, a veterinarian uniform.) He also believes that all animals should have a good home and if you cannot afford an animal, then don't buy one. Truer words were never spoken.

SOS and Vetmed Partner for Pets

Dr. Blasko of Vetmed in Midland has volunteered to partner with SOS Animal Rescue to provide low-cost cat neuter surgeries for the Midland County Spay Neuter program. The goal of the program is to reduce the number of unwanted litters of kittens in the Midland area.

The program offers reduced rates for cat neuter surgeries to qualifying households. To receive an application, send a request to SOS Animal Rescue, P.O. Box 2323, Midland, MI 48641. Dr. Blasko and her staff's dedication to the SOS Animal Rescue Spay Neuter Program is greatly appreciated.

Santa Parade

Join us for the Annual Midland Santa Parade on Saturday, November 22 at 10:00 a.m. The parade starts at the Midland High School parking lot, and we line up at 9:30 a.m.

Bring your friends and their dogs to walk with us. Wear something colored red. (Remember that a parade environment is filled with lots of noises, people, and action. If your pet stresses in those conditions please be kind and leave them at home.) Visit Downtown Midland's website at downtownmidland.com for more parade information.

Membership Renewal

We will begin our membership renewal mailing shortly, so be on the look out for the postcard.

Sharing Tree

Soldan's has once again graciously volunteered to partner with us on the annual sharing tree project. The tree will go up around November 1. So stop in, pick a tag, and remember those less fortunate pets this holiday season.

Puppies as Presents

Christmas puppies may sound good, but rarely pan out. For me the holiday season starts with the first letter from a parent asking for advice on a Christmas puppy. This year a new record: late September, about the same time as I spotted the first Christmas decorations being unpacked in a shop.

I have to give those early parents points for thinking ahead, because a pet should never be an impulse purchase. But year after year, I still have to advise that a Christmas puppy is rarely the best of ideas. Who doesn't love a puppy, and who wouldn't want to delight a child? But there are reasons why shelters, rescue groups and responsible breeders are uniform in their advice to think twice about a Christmas puppy.

What's the problem? The reasons against a Christmas puppy break down into these categories:

- Holiday stress. Puppies are animals that need a lot of attention. Who has time for a pup during the holidays? With a houseful of guests and a holiday dinner to prepare, who will make sure the puppy isn't being mauled by overly enthusiastic children and guests? Who has time to get house-training started right? Most people I know already are working at maximum stress levels during the holidays. To get a puppy off to the right start, the animal needs to be No. 1 on the family priority list.
- Bad timing. Try house-training a puppy when it's cold and stormy. Are you really so keen on the idea of a Christmas puppy that you want to be out on winter nights, shivering while a puppy carefully contemplates whether he'd rather sniff or pee?

- What about the rest of the training? The first few months of a dog's life are crucial: Bad habits are far easier to prevent than they are to break later, and ongoing socialization is critical. Dogs who grow up non-house-trained, non-mannered and non-socialized too often never get a chance to grow up much at all. From summer to fall, I get dozens and dozens of letters from people who are tearing out their hair over their now adolescent Christmas puppy.
- Poor selection. Many reputable breeders and shelters flat-out won't cooperate with your Christmas puppy lust. That means if you're looking for a puppy, you may be choosing from sellers who don't know or care enough to offer healthy, well-socialized puppies. With purebred dogs and the new trendy crossbreeds, this can be a real problem because congenital defects such as hip dysplasia turn up frequently in animals from sellers who don't certify their breeding dogs are free of congenital defects.

It's difficult to pass on that lovely Christmas morning moment, but if your goal is a healthy, well-socialized pet for years to come, wait until the odds are more in your family's favor when it comes to getting the right puppy off to a great start.
